The Yamatji meeting will take place on Saturday, 20 November from 9am at Carnarvon's Woolshed Hall in Camel Lane. The Pilbara meeting will take place on Friday, 26 November from 9am at Wangka Maya Language Centre, on the corner of Throssell and Hamilton Streets, South Hedland.

In this issue we cover recent native title mining agreements between Kariyarra and Hancock Prospecting; Puutu Kunti Kurrama and Pinikura (PKKP) and Fortescue Metals Group (FMG); and Kuruma Marthudunera (KM) and Chevron Australia. We also share with you the opening of the Perth office's 'Boyo Mitchell Board Room' in commemoration of our late Director, Mr Allen 'Boyo' Mitchell.

Kariyarra Agreement with Hancock Prospecting

Last month, the Kariyarra native title group announced a native title agreement with Hancock Prospecting. The agreement covers the company's proposed heavy haulage railway corridor to carry iron ore from its Roy Hill Project to Port Hedland.

The agreement provides a range of financial and nonfinancial benefits to the Kariyarra people, aimed at protecting the Kariyarra people's cultural heritage and promoting their economic development. The Kariyarra people will continue to have a say in protecting their heritage sites throughout the planning and development of the project. Hancock has committed to working with the Kariyarra people to try to avoid damaging any cultural heritage sites.

"As Kariyarra people we do everything we can to protect and look after our country," said Donny Wilson, a Kariyarra elder. "We're glad to have entered into an agreement with Hancock to try to make sure that their railway doesn't go through any of our important places."

Under the agreement, Hancock will ensure that its employees go through cultural awareness training and will develop an Aboriginal employment policy which takes into account the needs of the Kariyarra community. They will also build an Aboriginal art centre in the Port Hedland area, in consultation with the Kariyarra community.

Simon Hawkins, Chief Executive Officer of Yamatji Marlpa Aboriginal Corporation said, "This native title agreement, like many others, gives Aboriginal people the chance to participate in the real economy in the Pilbara by providing training and business development opportunities.

The partnership between Hancock Prospecting and the Kariyarra native title claimants will ensure that both parties have an interest in the economic success of the Roy Hill project, while providing for the respectful protection of Kariyarra culture."

PKKP sign Land Access Agreement with FMG

After more than two years of legal proceedings and ongoing negotiations, the Puutu Kunti Kurrama and Pinikura (PKKP) people have signed a land access agreement with Fortescue Metals Group (FMG) covering the entirety of their native title claim in the Pilbara.

PKKP country covers approximately 6,567 square kilometres of land south of Karratha, stretching east towards Paraburdoo. There are numerous significant cultural sites in the area of the proposed mining operations, including registered Aboriginal sites recorded by the Department of Indigenous Affairs.

The PKKP people actively exercise their native title rights in the area and believe that mining in the area will have a detrimental impact on their way of life, culture and traditions.

Despite losing a High Court appeal in 2009 relating to negotiations with FMG, the PKKP people signed a native title agreement for FMG's mining and railway projects on their country, in return for financial and non-financial benefits.

Sandra Hayes, spokesperson for the PKKP people said, "We are happy to have come to an agreement. It has been a long and sometimes difficult process, but we now move forward and look to create a partnership between our people and FMG."

Simon Hawkins, Chief Executive Officer, Yamatji Marlpa Aboriginal Corporation said, "In this case, the company's approach to interpreting the Native Title Act meant that Traditional Owners were unable to protect their country the way they wanted. Nevertheless, the PKKP people have done their best to come to this agreement. The legal process, and its outcome, has been extremely distressing for PKKP, for that reason we are glad to see a resolution."

YMAC Celebrates and Commemorates

On August 19, Yamatji Marlpa Aboriginal Corporation (YMAC) officially celebrated the opening of its new Perth office at 16 St Georges Terrace.

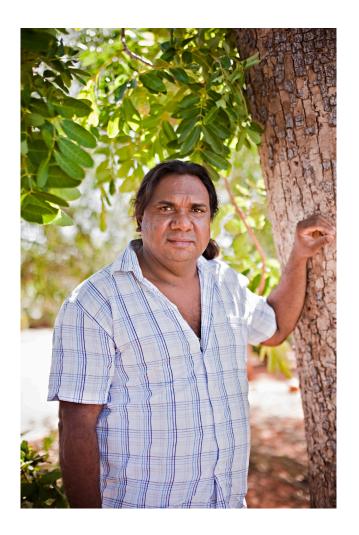

The event was commemorated with an afternoon function and included the opening of the 'Boyo Mitchell' memorial board room. The function was attended by YMAC's Aboriginal Board of Directors, staff and family members of the late Mr Mitchell. Dr Noel Nannup opened proceedings with a welcome to country, while the Mitchell family made an emotional tribute to their father while placing a plaque in his honour.

The 'Boyo Mitchell' board room was named after the organisation's late Director, a well known and respected Malgana man from Carnarvon who lived and worked throughout the state's north. Mr Mitchell was legendary for his ability to unite Aboriginal people towards the common goal of rightful recognition of traditional country through the native title process. Mr Mitchell was a Board and Committee member for 8 years and during this time saw the organisation flourish into one of the state's leading Aboriginal corporations.

Doris Eaton, YMAC's Chairperson, welcomed everyone to the new Perth office and paid an emotional tribute to the late Mr Mitchell.

"Boyo was an inspiration to Aboriginal people throughout Western Australia and we are honoured to have known and worked with him, he is missed by everyone that knew him and is still in our hearts today."

KM announce Pipeline Agreement with Chevron

The Kuruma Marthudunera (KM) people are celebrating the conclusion of negotiations with Chevron Australia for the future construction of a domestic gas pipeline from Barrow Island through the KM's native title claim area.

KM country covers approximately 15,759 square kilometres of land in the west Pilbara region and comprises part of the Fortescue River and the complete river system of the Robe River, in the most westerly part of the Hamersley Range.

The project involves the construction of a single gas pipeline to connect a processing plant on Barrow Island with the Dampier to Bunbury natural gas pipeline. The purpose of the pipeline is to supply a portion of the output from the gas project to domestic gas users in Perth and elsewhere.

KM spokesperson, Cyril Lockyer, praised the good working relationship between his people and Chevron and highlighted the need for other companies to follow suit in regards to respecting Aboriginal country and culture.

"When we were surveying our country with the company we came across several important sites in the designated construction area. After talking with Chevron the result is that the company will build the pipeline around these areas and not destroy these sites. This type of good working relationship between ourselves and the company will help us to continue to preserve our heritage for future generations."

Simon Hawkins, Chief Executive Officer, Yamatji Marlpa Aboriginal Corporation said, "This agreement is a perfect example of a resources company negotiating in good faith with Traditional Owners and reflects the good-will of all involved. We hope this agreement creates enduring relationships and a strong future for KM people."

Learning about

Country and Culture

In August, YMAC staff and Directors participated in cultural awareness training on Nyangumarta country.

Staff were taken out by the Nyangumarta people to visit sites of significance and to fish and hunt traditional foods. Nights around the camp fire were spent listening to dreamtime stories, learning traditional dances and hearing about the Aboriginal kinship system. Damper making and hunting turkey were particular favourites for everyone involved and resulted in tasty camp cook-ups.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Nyangumarta people for sharing their country and culture with our staff.
